TODAYS PARTNERS WITH EDUCATION PROGRAM TO PROVIDE EDUCATIONAL DISCOUNTS
Candidates Working with Todays to Receive Discounts on University and College Certificate Programs

DALLAS, TX – December 6, 2006 – Todays Staffing, a recognized staffing leader offering highly specialized talent solutions, announces today a new partnership with The College Network (TCN) to provide discounts to candidates on collegiate-level professional certificates via TCN's online system.

Todays' candidates will receive a five percent discount for Professional Certificates offered through TCN. Some of the universities and colleges offering certificates include: Cornell University, Boston University and Indiana University. Examples of programs include: Professional Certificates in Business Administration, Economics, Finance, Accounting and Marketing, Paralegal Certificates, and Certificates in Project Management.

"Todays is pleased that we can offer our candidates the opportunity for quality education that is easily accessible and more affordable," says Todays President, Dan Neuburger. "We care about the future of our candidates, and work to ensure we provide value to them by finding them quality positions at top companies, and assisting them in gaining the education and training they need to advance in the workplace. Many quality candidates are looking to gain the knowledge and experience to further their career and our partnership with TCN will allow Todays to continue to attract the highest quality candidates for our clients."

Todays also offers online training to candidates at no charge through courses that can be taken anywhere there is an internet connection. This program includes more than 500 courses, and helps candidates brush up on computer and professional development skills with offerings such as Microsoft Office courses, technical courses and classes on time management, negotiations, and motivation.

"We think that the new program combined with our existing online training will benefit our candidates immensely," says Neuburger. "Todays candidates can go online and brush up on the skills they need to use every day in their current position, and now they can also go online to work toward advancing their career."

The program launch date is set for December 11, 2006, and candidates will only have to fill out a short form online to qualify for the discount.
